'MEMOIRS' FROM JOHN WINSOR I was 15years old when I went to work on the farm at Hollingdon, and I stayed there for over 15years. That was in 1929. There was the farmer, his two sons and daughter, the cowman, and second cowman and me. When we went thistle picking in the corn field we would each take four rows, and you would see the mark we made across the field as we went. The second cowman was Mr. C. Woolhead who lived at the Red Lion Cottages. I will always remember this story he would tell, dating from the first world war. It was like a song really and he would sing it or say it nearly everyday so I got to learn it, though I have never heard anyone else tell it since.

"One night six soldiers sat in camp talking of sweethearts and wives. They all looked so happy excepting one lad who looked down-hearted and sad. One of those soldiers said, surely you are loved by someone. But the boy shook his head, and proudly he said, I am only loved by two; One has the hair of silvery grey, and the other has hair just like gold. And neither of these will I part. For one is my mother, God bless her I love her, and the other is my sweetheart."
